TWENTIETH EDITION

Groveton High School
6500 Quander Rd.
Alexandria, Virginia

She lifted her long iced skirts of lace over the land and stepped lightly over brisk northwestern winds. Gently she climbed onto the ripe clouds settled in the January sky and perched on her royal throne of ice. Raising her delicate arms above her, she lets her petticoats drop and those below her felt her power heaved upon the land. With delight, we looked up and watched her graceful decent whitten the fields below her.

Lisa Rodericks

Brooding in this warm corner in the Media Center, looking out these huge floor-to-ceiling windows, my attention is centered on a group of people gathered outside in the dark, cold, rainy day, laughing and jumping about to keep the cold from creeping inside their coats. A burst of laughter from one of the tables brings my attention back to my immediate surroundings. Except for an occasional burst of laughter, hushed blanket of silence covers the room.

The room is full of activity. People can be seen studying or scribling notes, while others are reading and checking out books. A functions student, scratches his head with a wild look in his eyes and a disgusted one on his face, looks up at me and shakes his head in disbelief before burying it back into his book. On the other side of the room a Thurber fan reads a short story in "My Life and Hard Times" and fights a losing battle to keep from laughing. Surrendering, she throws her head back and lets out a laugh that jolts some out of their engrossing activities. Noticing the pairs of eyes that have turned upon her, she blushes but looks defiantly around before returning back to the book with a giggle.

Looking around me, I realize how new this library actually is. The new sparkling windows, the soft green carpet underfoot, the tables that have not yet been written on, even the plants with their own air of vitality around them are new, none of these were here three years ago. It is interesting to think what will be here in another twenty. I wonder if, when I'm old and gray, I'll remember the day I sat brooding in this warm corner in the Media Center, observing and reflecting, happy to be a part of the Groveton amity, which the school is so well known for.

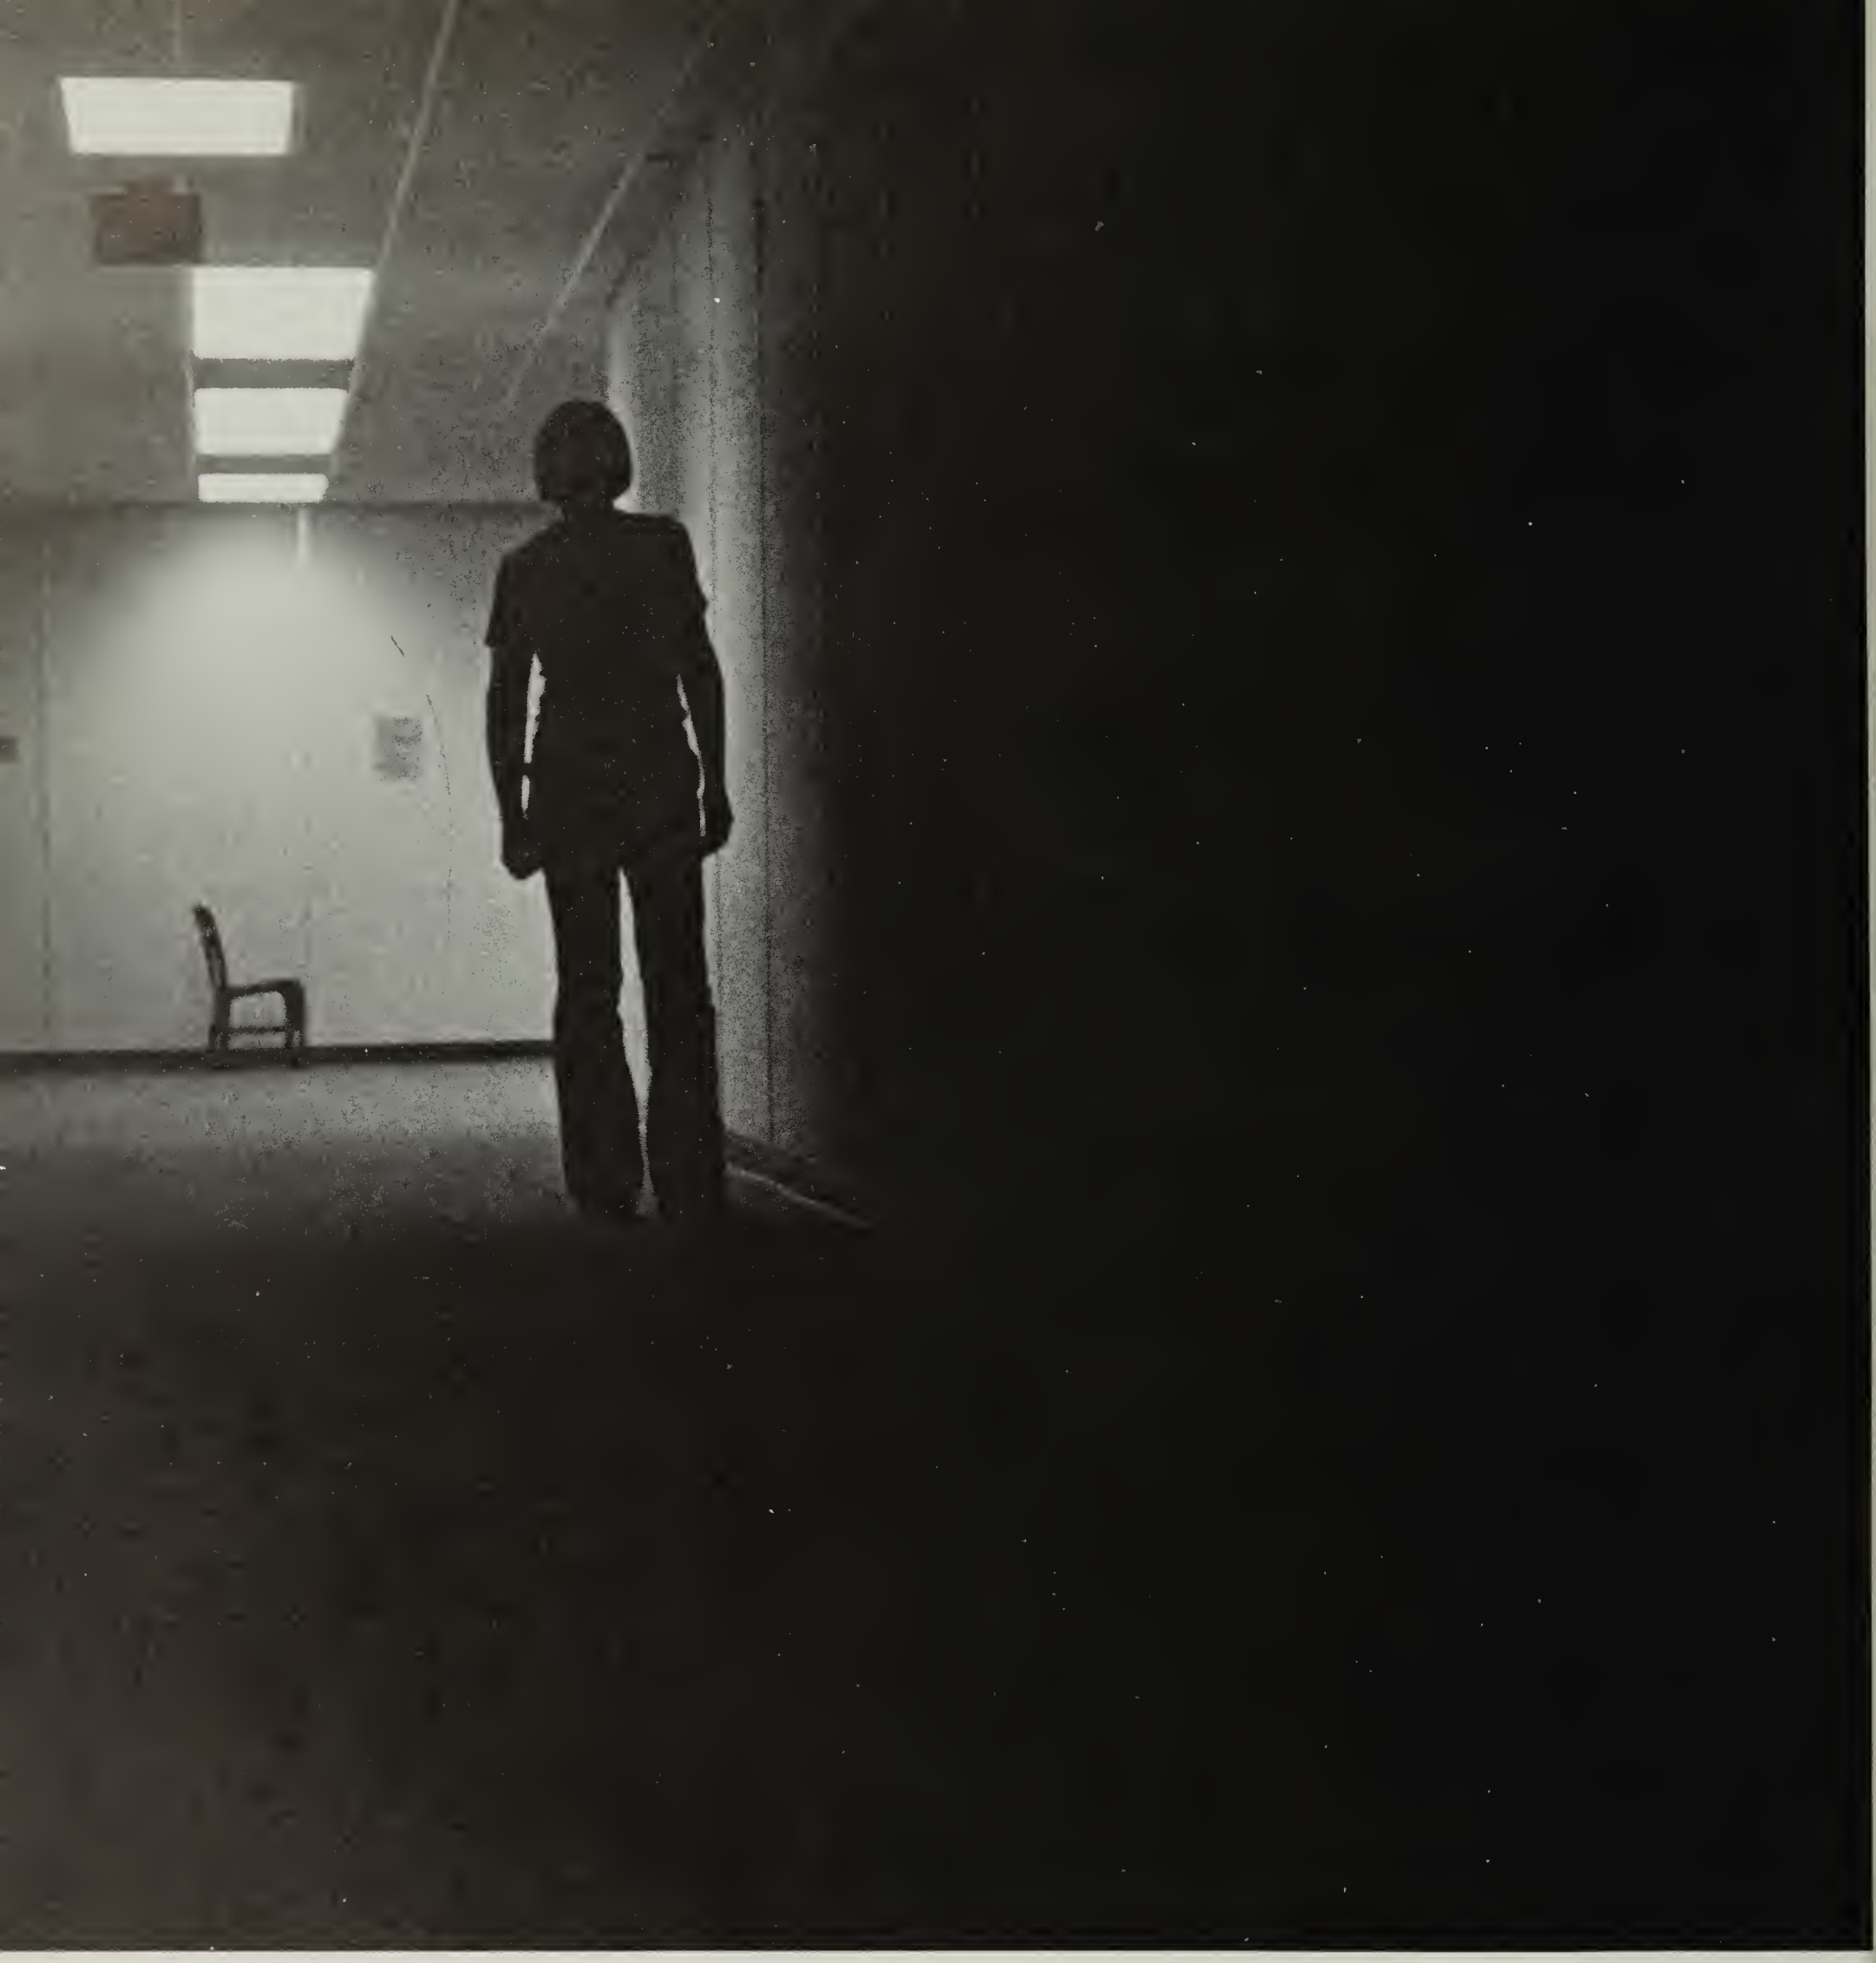
GREYHOUND



Insecurity is the feeling you get when you have no one to sit with in the cafeteria. Remember the first day of school? I bet you sat with someone, just anybody, to feel secure. You wouldn't be caught dead eating alone! What if someone saw you?!

Have you ever called someone you don't even like to ask him or her to pick you up? It's a secure feeling to have someone honk out in front of your house to go somewhere. What are you doing? You're using others to feel secure and most important of all, popular.

Many high school romances are like that. Couples go around together for months, get bored to death, and feel trapped but they never have to face anything alone. The other person is always there.

Is that what it's all about? Using people to feel secure and popular? In high school it's a way of life for many. We all know insecurity but the next time try doing something without thinking about who will see you or what they'll think. See what a good time you can have.

At the end of it all,
I lie back and breathe, and
for the first time all day,
I relax.
Until tomorrow when,
I have to do it all over again.

It is not the critic who counts, not the man who points out how the strong man stumbled or where the doer of deeds could have done them better. The credit goes to the man who is actually in the arena; whose face is marred by dust and sweat and blood; who strives valiantly; who errs and comes short again and again who knows the great enthusiasm, the great devotions and spends himself in a worthy cause, who at the best knows in the end of the triumph of high achievements and who at the worst, if he fails, at least while daring greatly so that his place shall never be with those cold and timid souls who know neither victory nor defeat.

There are two minutes left in the second quarter. We have called a time-out and the quarterback has left the huddle to talk with the coach.

We are all tired. We spit out mouthpieces and we unsnap chin straps to get more air. We walk around occasionally, hands on hips, and look toward our bench and over at the opponents defensive team, which is doing the same thing.

The quarterback returns all too quickly and tells us to "Huddle up." Bending over in the huddle, we look down and all we see are wet pairs of muddy cleats and wet pairs of muddy socks.

The play is called. We yell "BREAK" and clap our hands at the same time. Then we jog to our positions and think about the play. The quarterback's words are garbled because of his mouth piece, "Vlue Vorty-nine . . . Vlue Vorty-nine, Hut, Hut . . ."

I remember day three.
Climbing higher to the top;

Still I question everything I see,
Day three,
I remember.

SEVEN

I remember day four.
A finish so that I can begin;
My knowledge seems to contract,
Onto a one way tract.
I need some room to react.
The end is here,
I will look back;
All in a day, the days gone by,
I remember.
